

Linda Rendleman

Linda Rendleman, M.S., speaker, facilitator and author, is dedicated to the development of women. As a single mother, cancer survivor and business owner, she brings perspective to the many roles and challenges of today's woman.

Founder and CEO of Business Women Connect, Inc., an organization with the mission of developing business and professional women through mentoring, connections and resources, Linda has a background that spans thirty years of real-life experiences speaking, writing and promoting growth for women at home and in the workplace. Her popular editorials, Linda's Views, are read online each week at www.businesswomenconnect.com by thousands of women and are currently being published in book format. She has also hosted her own television show and her own radio show and has made numerous presentations and facilitations on a variety of women's issues to groups and companies throughout the country.

Linda has received recognition and numerous awards for her extraordinary speaking and writing abilities. Most recently, she was honored by the Indiana Commission for Women as a 2008 Torchbearer Recipient for leading and inspiring women to greater balance and fulfillment for quality lives.
